KIRAKIRA GEMMA RING ON MAGGIE GRACE

Below is what has inspired me to keep going in life, what she'll do on a busy day, and the details of her trademarked do-it-all workout, which combines strength, training and cardio for toning—and inevitably fun—energy boosting, slimming and toning.

5:05 A.M. Rise and shine
MY TYPICAL DAY I wake up, saying to get my husband, Nick, doesn't get up with me on the same time, but my Chihuahua do. I moved to New York City in August with an air mattress and a pile of shoes and towels. But now I have new furniture, and my place is comfortable. Plus, there's a great view.

MY DREAM DAY I'd sleep in—literally until 9 A.M. Then I'd lounge on the couch with my animals and read the paper.

Trend watch: Hurricane Sandy relief products

These charitable products benefit Sandy relief efforts by donating proceeds to the Red Cross and other nonprofits.

As New York City and other parts of the Northeast continue to recover from the devastating effects of Hurricane Sandy, many people want to know how they can help. If you aren't able to volunteer your time or attend the benefits and fund-raisers being held at bars and restaurants in New York, you can still purchase these charitable products, whose proceeds are being donated to the Red Cross and other nonprofits.

The storm left many living in coastal areas with little more than what was in bags when Sandy hit. Let this wax-vener leather tote serve as a humble reminder that power wasn't the only thing some New Yorkers lost. Local accessories designer Eva Hanusova is donating 50 percent of the sale of the proceeds to the Red Cross (redcross.org) through the end of the month. Eva Hanusova Dorset totes, $239 each, at evahanusova.com

The prep in your life will appreciate this one: charming Kiel James Patrick bow bracelets inspired by the classic dressing of the northeast. The $58 accessories — a girl's answer to the men's bow tie — are hand-sewn in Rhode Island and fastened with a brass lobster claw. The gold chain links adjust to any size wrist, too. Our favorite patterns include the poka-dot "Anne Bancroft" (left), the navy-and-white striped "Muskeget Island Waves" and the festive "Leighton Wickes." Find your favorite here, and find more awesome gift ideas in our galleries!

Gemstone Necklace

This delicate chain studded with cubic zirconia was inspired by the necklace that the Duchess of Cambridge—then Miss Catherine Middleton—wore to announce her engagement at St. James's Palace. We can't guarantee it comes with a handsome prince, but it's definitely got a regal sparkle.
