direct from an award-winning actress, which she does in and out of her room. "My mom used to call me a party, because the way I looked would change in every country we go to," says the 31-year-old, who collected bangles in India and attended quite a number of parties during the years she spent in Canada, where she studied international relations and fashion and television arts. Such, she's inherently sophisticated as Coco, the redheaded party girl model who plays on the hit sitcom. Now 31, but this much she knows: Before she got into the entertainment biz, Hannah worked at the United Nations in London, and now, when she's not on a TV or movie set, you can also see her in this month's Single Guy—about the author (Hollywood, she advocates for the Pink Dot Project, a small nonprofit that helps women with breast cancer cover their breastplate exposure. "A lot of women can't keep their breasts on, and I can't keep mine on," she says.)

Days later, Shay was en route to L.A. to audition in front of the studio and network. "It was like I was living in this crazy dream. They brought me lunch on the plane, and someone was waiting outside the airport with my name on a board," she says. "Everybody was like, 'It's going to be so scary!' And I'm like, if anything, it's a free trip to L.A. I never thought about the audition."

Clearly, it was the mile, Shay says, that she and the other girls. "We're all so excited to be together and all of a sudden it's so hard but we've been together for so long."

Color Technical Center. "While hair color makes gray hair more manageable, the color doesn't actually remove your sebum, whereas permanent dye can, and it grows out." (Don't) Hair color was a medium brown. As for the most natural results, "I used a color a shade with blue notes in its name, L'Oréal Paris Excellence Crème in Medium Chestnut Brown (No. 6), designed as shades. The brown and blue tones brighten the color and make them look younger."

THE VERDICT
"This is easy!"

4 Cover your hairline with a grip when you're shampooing. Don't sleep on the side due to the force of shampoo. Wet hair means a line of demarcation.

Proportion Matters
Try keeping the size of your stripes aligned with your frame. Tall or curvy women can pull off wider stripes, while petite women look better in smaller stripes.

Psychology of stripes
Horizontal and diagonal stripes are universally flattering; vertical stripes elongate. Wide stripes broaden, while narrow stripes lengthen your look.

Accessorizing
This season, stripes show up on jewelry, shoes and more. "Look for a striped look for day or a clutch for evening," suggests designer Tommy Hilfinger.

TIP
Add stripes in different ways to an outfit. Pair a striped top with a solid skirt, or a striped skirt with a solid top.

Fall

100+ Under $100: Vogue's Guide to Affordable Fall Fashion

No matter how many years have rolled by since you last associated the end of summer with the dreaded return to reading, writing, and arithmetic, the month of September always conjures up a back-to-school feeling. And what goes better with a back-to-school feeling than a little back-to-school shopping? In fact, for most people, this time of year feels like a fresh start—much more so than New Year's Eve—and lucky for anyone hoping to re-invent themselves (or, at least, incorporate a resolution or two), fashion has you covered, offering up an enormous array of look-changing options this season. Wait, what's that you say? Another resolution was to not spend all your money on clothes this year? Well, we have got your back there as well, thanks to our biannual 100+ Under $100 Guide, which pulls pieces inspired by both the runways and the September issue of Vogue—and presents them all at a perfect price.

The Piece: Kiel James Patrick Seafarer Collection

The Price: $98 each

Why We Want It: Borrowing from the boys isn't exactly what you'd call a new styling trick, but with the newest shirts from Kiel James Patrick, you won't have to borrow anything from anyone. The Seafarer Collection comprises two men's and two women's oxford cloth button-collar shirts covered in tiny embroidered maritime signal flags. They're probably the prepiest and most forthrightly nautical pieces of clothing we've seen all Summer — but then again, what else should you expect from a preppy, forthrightly nautical brand? These shirts are brilliant, but what we love most about them is that both boys and girls can wear them in exactly the same way: paired with chinos, deck shoes, a pair of Clubmasters, and a gigantic smile.
